1001 Inventions is a unique 'blockbuster exhibition' that promotes awareness of the scientific and cultural achievements of Muslim civilisation during the Middle Ages (7th century onwards) and how those contributions helped build the foundations of our modern world.

This exciting new exhibition features over 60 exhibits, across seven zones, including towering recreations of historic inventions. Children and adults alike will be enlightened and entertained with an impressive range of interactive exhibits, soaring structures, multimedia games, video clips, informative displays and a mini feature film shown on a large screen starring Sir Ben Kingsley.

Prepare to be enthralled as you wander around the zones and discover in a fun and revealing way how the period known as the 'Dark Ages' of Europe, which was in fact a 'Golden Age of Discovery' in the Muslim World. This is a 'must see' exhibition and listed as 'critic's choice' in Time Out Magazine.
