

Jewaira's Boudoir

1001 Inventions

Posted on April 7, 2010 by jewaira

I really enjoyed the exhibition at the Science Museum 1001 Inventions which showcases the heritage of Muslims in science and technology in addition to cultural effects such as vocabulary. The exhibit appeals to all ages as there are many interactive displays as well as a lot of information to be learned.

The web site 1001 Inventions is a great reference source too and a refreshing find, thanks to one of my loyal readers who suggested I visit the exhibition during my stay in London.

1001 Inventions and the Library of Secrets is a great short film, serving as an introduction to the Muslim contribution to human knowledge.

(More about the film here)

